

13

May 2nd, 2007

Dear Professor Ivanova,

It is truly an honor to recognize you as the Professor of the Year. We, The Members Thirteen, present you this honor as a token of our gratitude and thanks for all that you provide for the College and her community. The energy and drive you have brought to the campus in your two years here is incredible and enlivening! Not only do you conduct intriguing and challenging classes, but you also inspire and encourage your students individually. Your desire to work with students in a one to one situation and foster their continued research in your field is admirable.

Each day, you embrace the spirit of William and Mary. You motivate your students to go above and beyond. You have empowered your students with your passion, opening their eyes to the fact that the ability to change the world is actually at their fingertips, and that they do not need to remain thinking inside the box.

Indeed, your hard work, genuine and honest criticism and advice, understanding and compassion are objects worthy of the highest aim as we all try to bring about positive change here at William and Mary and the world. We thank you for your unfaltering commitment toward the students of our College and to the greater academic community. Your selfless hours of giving to students do not go unnoticed. The special relationship that is built here is mutual between students and faculty, allowing us the opportunity to take some time to recognize you and try to help in any way possible.

Students are extremely blessed to have people with your quality and character as our teachers. Through your extensive passion and respect for our education, you have visibly made a constructive impact on the way we view and experience life. Individuals like you make an institution of higher learning great, and for that we are extremely grateful. As a result, William and Mary will always grow as a better place. Thank you.

Sincerely,

The Members Thirteen